ebm-papst has risen to the global warming challenge by developing specific products that reduce power consumption by introducing the first electronically commutated (EC) high efficiency motors available in mainstream applications. These motors and fans reduce the fan power consumption in fridges in supermarkets by 75%.

Australian engineers and manufacturers are by nature innovative and ebm-papst has been able to support these developments with its locally and globally based engineering expertise and is proud to have been awarded with the 2011 Wyndham Business Award in Small Business – Manufacturing.
